

We Have The Watch

During our earliest days in the Marine Corps, we all learned that we must be on guard against any threat. Whether at Recruit Training or Officer Candidate School, we found ourselves standing fire watch; we memorized our 11 general orders and realized our role to protect those around us and to keep them safe. No matter how far we have traveled since then, we know our Marines and Sailors continue to count on us. We always know we have the watch.

Now, research has given us a new way to protect our team. The Watch List.

We always know our Marines and Sailors continue to count on us. Now, research has given us a new way to protect our team. The Watch List.

Using data from the 2018 Workplace and Gender Relations Survey of Active Duty Members, Department of Defense scientists identified “The Five Signals,” sub-standard behaviors and attitudes that indicate when Marines and Sailors may be at substantially increased risk of sexual assault. Many of these same areas can be assessed using the Defense Organizational Climate Survey (DEOCS).

The Watch List tool outlines specific behaviors associated with each of the Five Signals.

The Watch List Top 5 Signals
SEXUAL HARASSMENT
GENDER DISCRIMINATION
LACK OF RESPONSIBILITY & INTERVENTION
WORKPLACE HOSTILITY
LACK OF RESPECT & COHESION

These behaviors run counter to our high standards for performance and conduct. While some may seem unrelated to sexual assault, a permissive environment sends the signal that negative behaviors will be tolerated. If we do not challenge wrongdoers, they may take advantage, if conditions are right, and do even greater harm.

The Watch List describes common indicators and warnings that help us identify issues in our command climate that we must address.

By looking out for behaviors on the Watch List, we can recognize problems and take action. Using this tool is a tangible way to live our Core Values of honor, courage and commitment. Because we have known since that very first fire watch—when it comes to protecting our team—our duty never ends.

When it comes to the safety of our teammates, we all have the Watch.

Top 5 Signals of Risk for Sexual Assault

Analysis of the 2018 Workplace and Gender Relations Survey of Active Duty Members revealed the “Top Five Signals” identifying when Marines may be at higher risk of sexual assault. Many of these same areas can be assessed using the Defense Organizational Climate Survey (DEOCS). If a Marine experiences one of the measured behaviors below, their risk for sexual assault may increase.

When it comes to the safety of our teammates, we all have the Watch.

If Marines Experience...

SEXUAL HARASSMENT

risk of Sexual Assault increases

8x for Women
51x for Men

- Repeatedly tells sexual “jokes”
- Embarrasses, angers or upsets the Marine by repeatedly suggesting they don’t act like their gender is supposed to
- Displays, shows or sends sexually explicit materials (e.g., pictures, video)
- Repeatedly asks questions about their sex life or sexual interests that makes them uncomfortable, angry or upset
- Repeatedly makes sexual comments about their appearance, body
- Takes or shares suggestive pictures or videos of them when they don’t want to
- Repeatedly attempts to establish unwanted romantic or sexual relationship
- Intentionally touches them in sexual way when they do not want them to
- Makes them feel they would be punished/treated unfairly for not doing a sexual act

GENDER DISCRIMINATION

risk of Sexual Assault increases

3x for Women
18x for Men

A Marine is at higher risk of sexual assault, if a Marine’s career is hurt as coworkers:

- Mistreat, ignore, exclude, or insult them because of their gender

LACK OF RESPONSIBILITY & INTERVENTION

risk of Sexual Assault increases

3x for Women
8x for Men

A Marine is at higher risk of sexual assault, when the Marine’s unit:

- Does not make it clear that sexual assault has no place in the military
- Does not promote a unit climate based on mutual respect and trust
- Does not lead by example by refraining from sexist comments and behaviors
- Does not recognize and immediately correct incidents of sexual harassment
- Does not encourage bystander intervention to assist others in situations at risk for sexual assault or other harmful behaviors
- Leaders did not publicize sexual assault report resources
- Marines did not encourage victims to report sexual assault

WORKPLACE HOSTILITY

risk of Sexual Assault increases

3x for Women
7x for Men

A Marine is at higher risk of sexual assault, when the Marine’s coworkers:

- Intentionally interfere with their work performance
- Do not provide information or assistance when they need it
- Take credit for their work or ideas
- Gossip/talk about them
- Use insults, sarcasm or gestures to humiliate them
- Yell when angry at them

LACK OF RESPECT & COHESION

risk of Sexual Assault increases

3x for Women
6x for Men

A Marine is at higher risk of sexual assault, when the Marine’s unit is:

- Low in unit cohesion
- Low in respect from or for Chain of Command
- Low in respect for others from diverse backgrounds
- Low in ability to deal effectively with adversity or conflict when it occurs
- Low in gender respect: Women and men treat each other poorly
- Low in support: Marines do not provide help to one another when personal problems arise
