Important Information for Students

Personal Time Management

While enrolled in the school, there will be limited free time to address personal matters. It is strongly recommended that you proactively manage any personal issues before attending. On the first day of training, you will receive a comprehensive schedule and a briefing outlining the expectations, rules, and guidelines for the duration of your course.

Special Liberty Requests

Before submitting any requests for special liberty, consult with your Chief Instructor. The Director may adjust the academic schedule as necessary to meet educational requirements and accommodate federal holiday liberty periods not indicated on the official academic calendar.

Director's Guidance

You are participating in a professional military environment that demands the highest levels of discipline, appearance, and conduct. You are expected to carry yourselves with pride and purpose, fully understanding the responsibility that comes with the title of Noncommissioned Officer.

While at this Academy, you will be held to the strictest standards of grooming, uniform compliance, and military customs and courtesies. These are not merely expectations—they are baseline requirements that reflect who we are as Marines and the example we set for others. You are expected to maintain the bearing and presence of a professional at all times, both in and out of the classroom.

As Noncommissioned Officers, you are the first echelon of leadership for your subordinates. Your actions, attitude, and appearance directly influence the development of those you lead. This course is your opportunity to refine your leadership, expand your knowledge, and invest in your personal and professional growth. Take full advantage of the instruction, mentorship, and interaction that occur within these walls.

At no time should you conduct yourself with anything less than complete professionalism. Any deviation from this standard will not be tolerated and will be addressed accordingly.

Lead from the front. Be the example. And remember why you're here: to return to your units better leaders, more capable Marines, and professionals worthy of the trust placed in you.
