

MARINE CORPS UNIVERSITY PRESS

Call for Submissions Journal of Advanced Military Studies

MCUP publishes JAMS on topics of concern to the Marine Corps and the Department of Defense through the lens of various disciplines, including international relations, political science, security studies, and political economics.

Our Fall 2025 issue will have a broadly construed theme: Implications of Disruptive Technologies and the Use of AI in Military Applications.

The editors of JAMS are soliciting articles that examine several dimensions of disruptive technologies in military applications, including artificial intelligence (AI), drone warfare, hypersonic missiles, directed energy weapons, and quantum computing. Authors are encouraged to examine the positive and negative impacts of disruptive technology from a historical and contemporary perspective or the current and future ethical debates regarding the applications of disruptive technologies in military settings, and how different nation-states are developing and employing them, including the U.S. military, NATO allies, Israel, the Republic of China (Taiwan), and adversaries such as the People's Republic of China, Russia, and even Iran. This discussion can also include the proliferation of disruptive weapons technology to nonstate actors.

The editors of JAMS seek to foster a wide range of topics and questions, such as: How can AI be leveraged in military planning or wargaming? What are the challenges of AI applications in the realm of disinformation and malign influence? How could quantum computing affect military operations from space operations to encryption? What changes are required for the Joint Force to fully leverage disruptive technologies? Authors should not be limited to these questions, but aim to add to the ongoing discussions on disruptive technologies.

JAMS is a peer-reviewed journal on the Commandant's Professional Reading List, and submissions should be 4,000–10,000 words, footnoted, and formatted according to Chicago Manual of Style (17th edition). Junior faculty and advanced graduate students are encouraged to submit. MCUP is also looking for book reviewers and historiographers from international studies, political science, and contemporary history fields. To receive a copy of the journal or to discuss an article idea or book review, please contact MCU_Press@usmcu.edu.
