Journal of Advanced Military Studies

Marine Corps University Press publishes the Journal of Advanced Military Studies (JAMS, formerly MCU Journal) on topics of concern to the Marine Corps and the Department of Defense through the lens of various disciplines, including international relations, political science, security studies, and political economics.

Our Spring 2021 issue will have a broadly construed theme:

Political Warfare and Propaganda in the Digital Age

The editors are seeking articles on topics related to information warfare, cyberwar, and political warfare, particularly as it pertains to national security, international relations, and this new, evolving battlespace in the cyber realm. Articles can cover the topic along the broad spectrum of contemporary and historical examples of information, disinformation, propaganda, intelligence, cyberwar, and counterintelligence campaigns, including government-sanctioned hacking operations and other strategies to influence an adversary's populace through digital platforms to reach large audiences. These topics can include articles on any era or from the perspective of any country but particularly from the perspective of weaponized information. Examples from particular wars or conflicts are welcome, such as World War I and II, the Cold War, conflicts in the Middle East, frozen conflicts, and contemporary examples of malicious, state-sponsored hacking and cyber-based counterintelligence/intelligence operations.

JAMS is a peer-reviewed journal, and submissions should be 4,000–10,000 words, footnoted, and formatted according to Chicago Manual of Style (17th edition). Junior faculty and advanced graduate students are encouraged to submit. MCUP is also looking for book reviewers from international studies, political science, and contemporary history fields. Submissions due by 31 December 2020.
