

Forbes

Forbes Building
60 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10011
212 620-2200

Subrata N. Chakravarty
Senior Editor

Nov. 22, 1991

Dear Col. Boyd,

I enclose a copy of the December 9 issue of Forbes. On page 154 you will find the article by Joe Lamm that I edited and Vicki Centavrespi partially fact-checked with you.

I'm sure you will not remember, but I had the pleasure of interviewing you at the Pentagon in the summer of 1980 for an article on U.S. over-dependence of high technology. I am delighted that your ideas - on ~~massive~~ fast-cycle warfare, if not technology - are finally being given their due in the U.S. military. Perhaps in time the futility of $36. submarines and $16. bombers will also get through.

The article that is running is only about 20% of what Joe submitted. Nevertheless, I think most of the essential points get through. And, at 350 lines, it is one of the longest pieces in the magazine.

P.S. To this day, I regret not having with best wishes had the chance to go through one of your briefings.

S.N. Chakravarty