Biographical Sketch

Major General Smedley Darlington Butler, one of the most colorful officers in the long history of the Marine Corps, was one of the two Marines who received two Medals of Honor for separate acts of outstanding heroism. Butler, known to thousands of Marines as "Old Gimlet Eye", was born 30 July 1881 in West Chester, Pennsylvania. He was the son of Thomas S. Butler, a Representative in Congress from the Delaware – Chester County district of Pennsylvania for over three decades and a longtime chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

Butler was only 16 years old when, on 20 May 1898, he was appointed a 2d Lieutenant in the Marine Corps during the Spanish – American War. Following a brief period of instruction at Washington, D.C., he served with the Marine Battalion, North Atlantic Squadron, until 11 February 1899, when he was ordered home and honorably discharged on 16 February 1899.

He was commissioned a 1st Lieutenant in the Marine Corps on 8 April 1899 before he was assigned to duty with the Marine Battalion at Manila, Philippine Islands. From June to October 1900, he served with distinction in China during the Boxer Rebellion, and was promoted to Captain on 23 July 1900 by brevet for distinguished conduct and public service in the presence of the enemy near the city of Tientsin. He was wounded on 13 July 1900. He was not yet 20 years old when the citizens of his native West Chester presented him with a ceremonial sword upon his return from service in China.

Returning to the United States in January 1901, Butler served at various posts within the limits of the continental United States and on several ships. He was promoted to Major on 13 May 1908.

In December 1909 he was placed in command of the 3d Battalion, 1st Regiment on the Isthmus of Panama. He was temporarily detached to command an expeditionary battalion organized for service in Nicaragua on 11 August 1912. In this capacity he participated in the bombardment, assault and capture of Coyotepe, Nicaragua between 12 October and 31 October 1912. He remained on duty in Nicaragua until November 1912, when he rejoined the Marines at Camp Elliott, Panama.

His first Medal of Honor was presented following action at Vera Cruz, Mexico, 21 April and 22 April 1914, where he commanded the Marines who landed and occupied the city. According to his citation, Major Butler "exhibited courage and skill in leading his men" during the occupation of the city.

The following year, he received a second Medal of Honor for bravery and forceful leadership as Commanding Officer of detachments of Marines and seamen aboard the USS Connecticut in repulsing Caco resistance on Fort Riviere, Haiti on 17 November 1915. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel on 1 August 1916.

During World War I, Butler commanded the 13th Regiment in France. For exceptionally meritorious service, he was awarded the Army Distinguished Service Medal, the Navy Distinguished Service Medal, and the French Order of the Black Star. When he returned to the United States in 1919, he became Commanding General of the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Virginia, and served in this capacity until January 1924, when he was granted a leave of absence to accept the post of Director of Public Safety of the City of Philadelphia.

In February 1926, Butler assumed command of the Marine Corps Base at San Diego, California. In March 1927, he returned to China for duty with the 3d Marine Brigade. From April to October 1927 he again commanded the Marine Barracks at Quantico. He was promoted to Major General on 5 July 1929. On 1 October 1931, he was retired upon his own application after completion of 33 years of service in the Marine Corps.

In his post retirement career Butler became a sought after public speaker and anti – war advocate. He campaigned tirelessly for veterans’ and workers’ rights. Butler died at the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, on 21 June 1940. The USS Butler, a destroyer, later converted to a high speed minesweeper, was named for Major General Butler in 1942. This vessel participated in the European and Pacific theaters of operations during World War II.

Scope and Content

The collection includes correspondence, clippings, ephemera, photographs, drawings, maps, negatives, and official records related to the life and work of Smedley Butler between the years 1898 and 1940 (bulk 1912 – 1939).

The majority of the collection is comprised of Butler’s vast personal and professional correspondence. The first series in the collection, correspondence has been further subdivided into 3 subseries: personal correspondence, official correspondence, and post retirement correspondence.

Those letters in the subseries personal correspondence are characterized by the correspondent, i.e., letters exchanged between Butler and his immediate family. This subseries is dominated by correspondence between Butler and his wife, Ethel Butler; his mother, Maud Butler; and his father, Thomas Butler. Other correspondents include his brother, Samuel Butler, his aunt, Isabelle Darlington Butler, and his son Thomas “Tom Dick” Butler. The letters in this series, particularly those from Butler’s early years as a Marine, are particularly voluminous, as he would frequently write on a daily basis while deployed around the world.

The second subseries, official correspondence, contains those letters written or received by Butler in the commission of his duties during his long career in the Marine Corps. This subseries also contains letters from fans and supporters and correspondence related to Butler’s personal business dealings. It should be noted that, given Butler’s obvious dedication to his career as a Marine, he discusses aspects of his official responsibilities in his correspondence with his friends and family members; likewise, he discusses personal matters in correspondence dominated by his official duties. A thorough scholar would be advised to examine both subseries in examining the different stages in Butler’s life. The distinction has been made in order to compartmentalize the materials in this large collection to make them easier to examine. Butler’s short tenure as Director of Public Safety for the City of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania is documented here, though it is indirectly related to his Marine career. This series terminates in October 1931, after Butler's retirement from service.

The third subseries, post retirement correspondence, is comprised of correspondence to and from Butler after his retirement from the Marine Corps and his entrance into civilian life. By far the largest of the three correspondence groupings, this subseries consists primarily of Butler's communications with the public at large, as the majority of the letters in this subseries could be characterized as "fan" letters. This subseries also contains correspondence related to Butler's post – Marine Corps career as a lecturer, public speaker, author, and would – be Senator.

Whenever possible, enclosures have been kept with their accompanying letters, as have original envelopes. As such, materials that would fall into other series, such as clippings, have not been relocated for the sake of continuity. Correspondence is arranged chronologically by year, there under by date.

The second series in the collection is official records. These are materials characterized by their origination by and for the Marine Corps chain of command, including memoranda, orders, and letters of instruction issued to Butler and by Butler.

The third series, personal papers, includes Butler's fiduciary and medical records, insurance information, and those materials related to Butler's personal business and welfare. This series also includes ephemeral items and souvenirs.

The fourth series, writings, include manuscripts authored by Butler, the majority of which are autobiographical in nature. This series includes articles written by Butler for national publications on such subjects as American anti – imperialism, veteran's rights, and Prohibition.

The fifth series, speeches and lectures, include the text of speeches and lectures, as well as itineraries, promotional materials, and notes.

The sixth series, radio addresses, are comprised of radio scripts used by Butler in delivering addresses during a weekly radio program.

The seventh series, publications, articles, extracts, and clippings, include materials kept or maintained by Butler as research materials, as well as media in which he is mentioned. Butler received extensive media attention from an early age, and continued to find himself a constant subject of newspaper reports both as a Marine and as a public speaker.

The eighth series in the collection, photographs, negatives, drawings, and postcards, is comprised of visual materials collected by Butler. While there is a small component of photographs of a personal nature, the majority of the photographs in this series are related to Butler's career and life as a public figure.

The ninth series, maps and charts, is also the smallest in the collection, comprised by Butler's modest collection of maps.

The tenth series includes Butler family papers. These are materials kept by the Butler family after the death of Smedley Butler, primarily those materials kept by his wife Ethel concerning photographs of memorial events and tributes to Butler, condolence letters received after Butler's death, and correspondence from scholars about Butler's career. The eleventh series contains oversized materials.

The collection contains considerable material concerning Butler's tour in Haiti, with many letters detailing the day – to – day conditions and problems peculiar to the Marines' role in the occupation of the country. Butler's position in the establishment of the Gendarmerie d'Haiti is developed through many letters from various leading political figures and members of the military, both American and Haitian.

The collection also includes significant material on Butler's repeated attempts to be relieved of his duties in Haiti in order to be dispatched to Europe at the outset of America's entry into World War I, and the constant denials from Assistant Secretary of Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The segment of the collection that covers Butler's tour of China in 1927 – 1929 as Commanding General of the 3d Brigade, U.S. Marines is particularly important. Included are position papers describing the role that the 3d Brigade was to assume "to protect the lives and property of our nationals in Tientsin, to offer a temporary refuge in Tientsin for our nationals' evacuation from the interior and to make safe that evacuation to the sea." Butler wrote very detailed reports of his command during the late 1920s in China.

The collection documents Butler's role in establishing the vocational and education programs of the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Virginia in 1920; the controversy over Butler's alleged disparaging remarks on the conditions of the USS Gulfport in 1921; the general program of the East Coast Expeditionary Force maneuvers in 1921; Butler's activities as Director of Public Safety for Philadelphia from 1923 to 1924. Butler's post Marine Corps career as an author and lecturer is also well documented.
