A DIGEST OF THE PRINCIPAL LAWS RELATIVE TO THE NAVY OF THE UNITED STATES.

The existing laws authorize—

6 ships of 74 guns; 9 vessels to carry not less than 32 guns; 12 vessels not less than 20, nor exceeding 24 guns; 12 vessels of 18 guns; 10 galleys. (See acts of July 1, 1797; April 27, May 4, June 22 and 30, 1798, and February 25, 1799.)

The act of February 25, 1799, authorizes the erection of two docks, and appropriates $50,000 for that object. Two hundred thousand dollars are appropriated for the purchase of timber for naval purposes. (See act of February 25, 1799.)

The President is to increase the strength of the revenue-cutters and place them on the navy establishment, at his discretion; and to augment the force of any ship or vessel now in service, by allowing an additional number of guns and men therein beyond the established rate. (See acts June 22, 1798, and February 25, 1799.)

Prizes of equal or superior force to the vessel making the capture, belong solely to the captors; if of inferior force, are to be divided equally between the United States, and the officers and men making the capture. (See act April 23, 1800, s. 5.)

All the original papers and writings found on board of a captured vessel, are to be transmitted unmutated to the judge of the district to which such prize is ordered to proceed, and complete lists of the officers and men entitled to a share of the capture, are to be transmitted to the Navy Department, and to the agent appointed to pay the prize-money. (See act April 23, 1800, article 7, section 1.)

Persons disabled in the naval service are entitled to receive for life, or during disability, a pension from the United States, not exceeding one-half of their monthly wages. (See act April 23, 1800, section 8.)

A bounty of $20 for each person on board of any ship of an enemy at the commencement of an engagement, which shall be sunk or destroyed by any ship or vessel belonging to the United States, of equal or superior force, is allowed by the United States. (See act April 23, 1800, section 7.)

For distribution of prize-money, the formation of naval courts-martial, &c., see act April 23, 1800, "for the better government of the Navy."

SALVAGE IN CASES OF RECAPTURE.

In all cases recaptured property is to be restored to the former owner or owners, and the following allowances are made in lieu of salvage:

On the recapture of American goods or vessels (other than vessels of war or privateers) taken by an enemy of the United States:

If recaptured by a public vessel, one-eighth part.

If recaptured by a private vessel of the United States, one-sixth part of the true value of the vessel or goods, allowing and excepting all imports and public duties to which the same may be liable; but if the vessel so retaken shall appear to have been armed as a vessel of war, before being taken, or afterward and before the retaking thereof, the salvage to be one moiety of the true value of such vessel of war.

On the recapture of an unarmed vessel, or any goods therein (taken by an enemy of the United States) belonging to the United States:

If recaptured by a public vessel, one-half part. If recaptured by a private vessel of the United States, one-sixth part of the true value thereof.

On the recapture of a public armed vessel of the United States, or any goods therein (taken by an enemy of the United States): If recaptured by a public vessel, or fourth part. If recaptured by a private vessel of the United States, one moiety of the true value thereof.

The recaptured vessel or goods to be restored to the United States, and the amount of salvage to be paid out of the Treasury of the United States.

Salvage on recaptured property, taken by an enemy of the United States, claim by alien friends, the same as they allow in similar cases, unless provided for by treaty. (See act of March 3, 1800.)

THE PAY OF OFFICERS.

Having no source of correct information with respect to the captures, I cannot now afford a full view of the force and value of each vessel captured. I hope, however, to have it in my power to afford such information in a future publication.

The number of vessels recaptured considerably exceeds eighty.
