

"Turkish Model: Turkey's Role in the Arab Spring"

Dr. Soner Cagaptay

The Washington Institute for Near East Policy

This is the fourth lecture in a series being hosted by Middle East Studies at Marine Corps University entitled "Orienting Our Sights on the Future: the Opportunities and Challenges of the Arab Revolts."

Soner Cagaptay is a senior fellow and director of the Turkish Research Program at The Washington Institute. He has written extensively on U.S.-Turkish relations, Turkish domestic politics, and Turkish nationalism, publishing in numerous scholarly journals and major international print media. He also is a regular columnist for Hürriyet Daily News, Turkey's oldest and most influential English-language paper. A historian by training, Dr. Cagaptay wrote his doctoral dissertation at Yale University (2003) on Turkish nationalism. Dr. Cagaptay has taught courses at Yale, Princeton University, Georgetown University, and Smith College on the Middle East, Mediterranean, and Eastern Europe. His spring 2003 course on modern Turkish history was the first offered by Yale in three decades. From 2006-2007, he was Ertegun Professor at Princeton University's Department of Near Eastern Studies. Dr. Cagaptay is the recipient of numerous honors, grants, and chairs. He also serves as chair of the Turkey Advanced Area Studies Program at the State Department's Foreign Service Institute.
